

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Circumferentially-smooth heat-conducting surfaces are formed on coil ends by rolling a coil end group of a stator winding. A distribution channel for distributing cooling water is disposed in a bracket. A heat-conducting filler is filled between the coil end group and the bracket.